IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

MEETING OF FEDERATION OF LABOR

Addresses of Welcome and Responses—Lengthy Report Delivered by President Gompers to Convention.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Four hundred and eighty delegates representing 3,400,000 members of labor unions met to day in the twenty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. Addresses of welcome by heads of California organizations were responded to by President Samuel Gompers.

Questions which seem to interest the delegates most before calling the convention to order were those of socialism and trade autonomy. These will be thoroughly thrashed out on the floor. It is expected the sessions will continue two weeks.

President Gompers delivered his annual report this afternoon. The report is quite lengthy and reviews in detail the labor situation throughout the country. Gompers considers the growth of the organization during the past year very satisfactory. He shows that during the past twelve months a total of 43 charters were issued and that the total membership of the federation is 3,400,000. The total affiliated unions is 1,500. He looks for the keenest opposition in the future and to meet this advises efforts be made to bring into the federation all unorganized elements of labor.

"We would abolish war, industrially as well as internationally," says Gompers. "but its abolition must come and it will come from an unconscious power, intelligent and broader humanity. May the day never come when peace is proclaimed or maintained because of the hand of the workers. Peace, to be desirable, to be lasting, advantageous and humane, must come from a virile and intelligent manhood. We want no peace and there will be no peace founded upon servility and degradation of the workers."

Discussing the open shop question, Gompers says: "A union shop in no sense involves denial of the right of every man to sell his labor as he may see fit, nor employer to hire such labor. In fact, it is an affirmation of that right. Employers have a lawful right to hire any labor they may choose, but it does not give the right to impress workmen or to enslave them, or to drag them into a factory on any terms the employer may choose to grant as an expression of his kindness."

"Employers have the right to make contracts for labor. This right carries with it, also, the same rights of workmen. It, therefore, follows that workers have the right to sell their labor as they see fit; they have also the right not to sell it to employers unless it be through the collective bargain of a union shop."

Discussing the Colorado situation, Gompers takes strong grounds against the course pursued by the citizens' alliance. He declares "that civil government has been set at naught and constitutional and natural rights and guarantees wantonly trampled under foot."

Injunction against workmen is a subject considered at some length. After discussing various points, Gompers says: "We reiterate and emphasize the declaration that we have no desire to be immune for commission of unlawful acts, for we discountenance and denounce them and recognize their commission as wrongful and prejudicial to our own interests as well as to the public good. But we must insist that if any man connected with our movement be charged with an unlawful act that he should, like any other man, be put upon his defense and before a jury of his peers meet his accusers and abide by the verdict. We protest against class distinction made in these cases, so far as they apply to labor, which even upon an ex-parte allegation of our opponents renders a workman punishable for an act which is held as perfectly lawful when committed by others. Surely, we have the right to demand the constitutional guarantee of equality before the law. If labor is but true to the great cause of labor we shall force home upon our opponents as well as politicians and recreant statesmen the demand for that protection, justice and fair dealing to which we are entitled."

Gompers opposes incorporation of trades unions as against the best interests of those organizations. He also opposes compulsory arbitration. On the subject he says:

"Our movement is sincerely in favor of arbitration of disputes which cannot be determined otherwise, but we are strongly committed against the policy of compulsory arbitration in any form, particularly compulsory arbitration by the state. When conciliation fails we favor voluntary arbitration with employers, and, if necessary, disinterested party as an arbitrator. We emphatically declare the necessity for faithful compliance with terms and awards made by such arbitration, but we are equally insistent that arbitration shall be voluntarily entered into and voluntarily and faithfully followed. Nothing can be brought with-much danger, resulting in rank injustice and injury, as compulsory arbitration by the state in any form which is practically compulsory enforcement of an award. It is not anise to assert our conviction that in the one case it may result in confiscation of property and in the other involve involuntary servitude. In other words, slavery of man."

Secretary Frank Morrison's report shows receipts $205,000; expenses, $205,000. The report shows steady increase in the number of affiliated unions during the past eight years. In 1896 the number was 2,895; in 1904, 17,393. During the year there were 1,800 strikes, involving 25,171 persons. Of that number all but 18,829 were settled. Total cost of strikes, $2,804,620.

Treasurer John B. Lennon reported total income, $305,000; expenses, $305,001; total funds now on hand, $10,617. Nearly all this amount is deposited in Bloomington, Ill., banks.

Aside from reading of the report of the credentials committee the only business transacted was reading of officers' reports. To night a mass meeting was held at which several speakers discussed co-operation and trades unionism.

WARE RESIGNS

Commissioner of Pensions Will Give up Office the First of the Year.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Commissioner of Pensions Ware to day tendered his resignation to the president and it was accepted to take effect Jan. 1.

When seen to night Commissioner Ware refused to discuss his resignation in any way except to state newspapers have been "resigning" him for the past two years. For at least one year, however, it has definitely known Ware would retire soon after the full elections and return to his home in Kansas to resume law practice. It is believed here Ware's action was not due to any suggestion that severance of his relations with the pension office would be agreeable to the president. On the contrary, it has been no secret that Ware soon after assuming his duties found the work of his office distasteful and that this distaste steadily increased. There is no intimation to night who his successor will be.

TROUBLE AT RIO JANEIRO.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 14.—Business is suspended here in consequence of rioting yesterday, the result of opposition to the compulsory vaccination law. Military has been called upon to restore order. ## RAIN, SNOW AND HEAVY WIND

SWEPT THE ATLANTIC COAST SUNDAY

Complete Tie-up of Communication—Telegraph and Telephone Wires Down Everywhere—Many Points Isolated.

New York, Nov. 14.—Communication with the west after having been cut off for many hours by Sunday's storm was re-established soon after three this morning by the Associated Press through a telephone wire between Baltimore and Chicago. Morse telegraph instruments displaced telephone devices and restricted service at once begun. Damage to wires is the most serious which telegraph companies have experienced in many years. Owing to the width of the storm's path, much delayed railway traffic is anticipated, as telegraph largely controls the movements of trains.

Boston, Nov. 14.—New England was the center yesterday of the storm which since Saturday morning swept up the Atlantic seaboard. When at its height the wind blew with a hurricane velocity in this city. The maximum velocity was forty-five miles yesterday afternoon.

The coast storm was accompanied by snow, rain, hail and sleet. Telephone and telegraph lines in eastern New England and maritime provinces suffered severely. The storm had been well heralded and most shipping remained in port. So far as known only two vessels met disaster.

BUSINESS CRIPPLED.
Chicago, Nov. 14.—Communication with the storm swept centers of the east was established in a measure way during the day, but still there is more or less interruption. All wires are down east of Buffalo and as far south as Richmond, Va. While towns north as far as Utica and Albany are entirely cut off and the extent of yesterday's terrific blizzard cannot yet be ascertained.

Business of Chicago and New York exchanges and in fact all brokers' establishments was badly interfered with during the entire day, because of the utter impossibility of getting direct wires in working order between the two cities. The latest advices indicate several persons lost their lives in the storm and many boats along the Atlantic coast were wrecked or imperiled and those that were unable to make a port of shelter presumably went down. Scores of small towns are completely isolated and many will be left in absolute darkness to night as the result of destruction of power houses and electric wire connections. At Scranton and Harrisburg, Pa., snow fell to a depth of two to three feet. Railroads of New York and Pennsylvania were badly hampered to day, many trains being stalled and others running on slow schedule.

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—The fierce storm that prevailed over Lake Erie and northern Ohio last night resulted in the death of Capt. Dell Minney, of Buffalo, by foundering of the tug Gregory, and serious injury of three persons in the city. While property loss is considerable, great damage was wrought to telegraph and telephone wires in all directions.

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—In consequence of yesterday's storm many telegraph and telephone lines are still down and there is serious interruption in the ordinary transaction of business.

EFFECTS FAR-REACHING.
New York, Nov. 14.—That the effects of the storm were more far-reaching than in any similar destruction since the great blizzard of 1888 became evident to day when disarrangement of wire connection continued almost as complete as at any time during the height of the storm. Up to 10 o'clock many points were completely isolated, while whole sections were reached only by the most circuitous routes.

To the west telegraph points having direct communication with New York were Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Associated Press, however, had succeeded in reaching the west and incidentally many eastern points by means of a telephone wire between Baltimore and Chicago. The news report was carried over the regular wires between New York and Baltimore, when it reached the latter city was transferred a distance of ten blocks to a telephone office by cabs, was then forwarded by telegraph to Chicago over a long distance telephone wire, and from Chicago telegraphed back to Washington and other cities which could not be reached over regular routes. The same plan was followed in many other cases.

So complete was the prostration of wires through the sections where the effect of the storm was most seriously felt that conditions had improved but little this afternoon. Some progress was made, but the damage was so extensive the work progressed with tedious slowness.

ALBANY ISOLATED.
Albany, Nov. 14.—Albany has never had worse demoralization of wire communication than that which has isolated it to day as a result of last night's storm. For nearly twenty-four hours neither by telegraph nor telephone was communication possible with any point further than eight miles outside the city. Wires are down all over the city.

ALL WIRES DOWN.
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Wires

conditions than ever known in this city resulted from the storm of last night and yesterday. Poles and wires were broken all over the city and in the country. Trunk lines of the Western Union, the Postal Telegraph and long distance telephone were all down with the exception of one Western Union wire, which was used all night to dispatch New York Central trains. The streets are full of live wires and during the night Mayor Rice ordered all power shut off, so that the city was in darkness and trolley cars stalled. Similar conditions are reported throughout the state.

Boston, Nov. 14.—The fierce southern storm which started off the Florida coast Saturday and swept up the Atlantic seaboard passed over the maritime provinces to day and to night had its center off Cape Race, Newfoundland. The storm in the provinces, particularly along Nova Scotia, was attended with terrible gales. Telegraphic and telephonic communication with the provinces is interrupted and what news came from eastern Maine went through by a most circuitous route. To night there is no wire communication east or north of Waterville, Me., and telegraphic connection between Boston and points in Vermont is suspended.

EDITOR EXPELLED

Driven Out of Venezuela Because of Friendship to United States.

Washington, Nov. 14.—A. P. Jauret, editor of the Venezuelan Herald, has been ordered expelled from Venezuela by President Castro. ## LOVE.

Lord Byron, brilliant, beautiful and unscrupulous as his own Don Juan, left behind him the maxim that there was but one real form of happiness in love—where a man and woman so adored each other that they could conceive of no happiness out of each other's sight, and this for their whole lives. Grant that this is to demand a great deal, yet it is true that all the influences of long life combine to identify two who dwell together. Their very faces often grow more alike, and how frequently the death of one is followed speedily, without sufficient visible reason, by that of the other also!

An Accurate Marksman.

Accuracy is one of the best business accomplishments. However, it is seldom drawn to a finer point than in the following story, taken from the Chicago Journal:

During the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882 Lord Charles Berosford asked a gunner if he could hit a man who was on the fort. The gunner replied:

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"Then hit him in the eye," said Lord Berosford. He was surprised when the gunner inquired:

"Which eye, sir?"

A Process Reversed.

"You regard campaign calculations as a distinct branch of mathematics?" "Yes," answered the erudite personage. "The method differs from all others. You start with the answer and then work backward and evolve a problem to demonstrate it."—Washington Star.

Not Too Timid.

An officer in the army laughed at a timid woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid woman, and six months afterward he took off his boots in the hall when he came in late at night.

ONLY MAKES A BAD MATTER WORSE.

Perhaps you have never thought of it, but the fact must be apparent to every one that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25c bottle of them. For sale by all leading druggists.

PURSUED WAR TO BITTER END

THAT IS UNTIL RUSSIA HAS CONQUERED

Emphatic Statement Made by Ambassador Cassini—Report From Kuropatkin's Headquarters—Other News.

Washington, Nov. 14.—"Russia will pursue the war in the far east to the bitter end. That is until Russia has conquered. There are the opening words of an emphatic statement made to day by Russian Ambassador Cassini. Continuing his statement, Cassini said:

"Russia can no more admit of interference than Great Britain could in the Transvaal, or than could the United States in her war with Spain. Where the prestige of a country is at stake all other considerations are and must be put aside." He scouts the notion that Russian finances are such as to influence her to end hostilities. Cassini insists Russia has plenty of money to continue the war.

FREQUENT FIGHTS.

Kuropatkin's Headquarters, via Mukden, Sunday, Nov. 13.—(Delayed.)—Frequent fights between opposing patrols occurred to day. Russians with heavy howitzer and six-inch gun batteries shell Japanese trenches and give working parties little respite. Large numbers of Russian officers are arriving at the front to replace those who have fallen. The Russian army is realizing more fully day by day the task involved in driving back the Japanese. Great hopes, however, are placed on the Russian second Pacific squadron. Troops are now better fed than at any previous time, as the roads are in good condition, enabling reinforcements to leave the trains at stations higher up the line and march to Mukden, thus relieving pressure on the railroad.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—The Tagoblat's military correspondent in a dispatch from Mukden Nov. 11 says:

"A decisive battle is improbable before spring. The Japanese will not attack until several weeks after the fall of Port Arthur and the Russians are awaiting such an overwhelming superiority in numbers as to leave the question of victory beyond doubt. The Russians are constantly receiving reinforcements and troops are in good spirits and excellent health. Even outposts are well sheltered against the cold."

Tokio, Nov. 14.—The emperor presided at an extended conference of the military and navy staff to day. While proceedings were secret, it is understood plans were discussed for dealing with the Russian second Pacific squadron when it arrives in the far east.

Headquarters Japanese Third Army before Port Arthur (undated), via Pusan, Nov. 14.—Casualties in attack of the Japanese on the eastern fortified ridge Oct. 20 were 1,500. It was unsuccessful assault. The powerful Kakwan fort was gained, but the Russians were reinforced and drove the Japanese down to the foot of the hill. The Japanese are now supplying toward the crest of the hill. Capture of this fort would give the Japanese the key to the eastern fortified range as artillery mounted there would dominate the forts in front of the ridge and enable the Japanese to place infantry to sweep the ridge.

Kuropatkin's Headquarters, Nov. 14, via Pusan, Nov. 14.—A squadron of Russian cavalry yesterday attacked the Japanese in the neighborhood of Letitina. The Russians were so severely repulsed that at dusk they were still gathering up their dead and wounded.

JAPANESE DENY KUROIKI'S DEATH.
Tokio, Nov. 15.—The Japanese army staff pronounce the report of Kuroiki's death to be absurd.

WORRIED OVER RUSSIAN FLEET.
London, Nov. 14.—Judging from Tokio dispatches and statements by Japanese here the question of the Russian second Pacific squadron is giving rise to some uneasiness in Japan. This possibly is the outcome of continued absence of news of progress of the siege of Port Arthur. An article in the Post from Japanese sources comments strongly upon alleged breaches of neutrality on the part of France and Germany in giving the squadron coaling facilities and also contends it will be utterly at variance with Suez canal regulations for the ships to be permitted to take sufficient coal and provisions at Port Said to carry them to the nearest port. The article suggests Great Britain interfere to prevent the granting of such facilities.

Rome, Nov. 14.—Festivities in honor of the jubilee of the immaculate conception were begun to day with holding of a brilliant consistory, which was especially interesting, as the pope lately had been indisposed and many persons, who had been assured of his recovery. Monsignor Kennedy at a private consistory of cardinal presided a pattern for Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis.

WEBER MURDER CASE

Feeling Against Son Is Running High—Examining Debris of Burned House.

Ansonia, Cal., Nov. 14.—The Weber murder case is progressing slowly, no finding can be made until the entire ruins have been run through a miners' sluice box. The weapon used to commit the murder has not been found. The debris will all have been worked over by to morrow and if a 32-caliber revolver is not found there will be proof Julius Weber, the father, did not commit the crime.

Officers are in possession of evidence that points strongly toward Adolph Weber as the man who robbed the Placer County bank last May. Feeling against young Weber is running high, but as he is in the county jail there is no fear of any unlawful act on the part of the citizens. Only relatives and lawyers are allowed to see him.

DIED OF COLD.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 14.—The 8-year-old son of County Clerk William Smith, of Eagle River, died of cold and exhaustion while hunting rabbits near the lake shore to day. ## EIGHT HOUR DAY

Five Mines in Colorado Give Employees What Men Struck For.

Denver, Nov. 14.—Mines were opened at night of the five big mines in the Telluride district to night that in the future the eight-hour day would prevail in the mills. It was demanded for this concession in the mills of the state that precluded the strike and ended bitter strife between miners and mine owners. The minimum wages promised under the new arrangement is $2 a day. At one time Western Federation miners offered to accept $2.50 for an eight-hour day. It is the general opinion that under the new order no discrimination will be made against employment of union men.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Lack of water in the lungs and several knife stabs found in the body of a man found in Lake Michigan near Rogers park to day are evidences which the police claim point to murder. The body is supposed to be that of Luciano Salvigiovanni, an Italian. It is believed by the police that the man was murdered and his body thrown in the lake.

DIED WHILE BATHING.

PERILS OF LAND AND SEA.

Captain Willnef's Remarkable Escape Shows What to do in Time of Trouble.

For many years, Captain Willnef, says the Times, of Gloucester, Mass., was one of the best-known seamen in the Gloucester fleet. The sea and its dangers had no terror for him, but the catarrhal troubles with which he suffered for fifteen years made him dread the nights at sea, for he had to walk the cabin floor, being unable to lie down and sleep on account of the constant catarrhal dripping.

Captain Willnef went to two different hospitals for treatment, but could get no lasting benefit. He constantly raised yellow and green pus from his trouble became so unbearable and nauseating that he was ashamed to go out in company. When despairing of ever getting relief, his wife purchased a Hyomei outfit for him, and trying it before going to bed, he enjoyed the first whole night's sleep for ten years. Captain Willnef says: "I have used less than two bottles of Hyomei and have been cured by the remedy. My friends ask me what is responsible for my improvement, and I tell them Hyomei, which has given me the full and complete recovery."

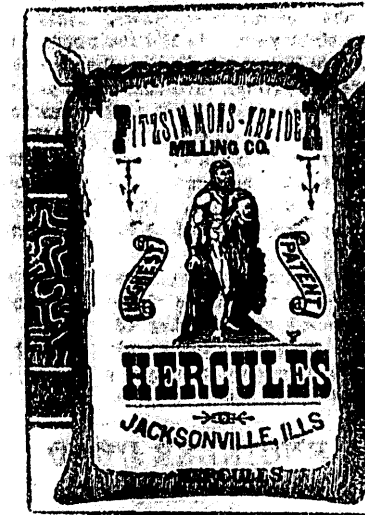

Captain Willnef's experience shows our readers what to do in time of catarrhal trouble—use Hyomei. This remarkable treatment kills the germs of catarrh and makes lasting and permanent cures. Hatch sells Hyomei under his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not give quick relief.

FIRE AT OMENA.

The Omena Inn, owned and managed by W. H. Dewey, of Omena, Mich., was destroyed by fire Nov. 3. The inn had been closed to guests for some time and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey were preparing to close the inn for the winter. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is believed to have started from sparks from the kitchen chimney, which set fire to leaves on the roof. Mrs. Dewey discovered the fire in the kitchen and it had made so much headway that it was impossible to check the fury of the flames. There are no fire fighting facilities in the village of Omena, which is made up largely of summer cottages scattered about the woods, and it is fortunate that the flames did not spread and involve some of these.

The loss is between $6,000 and $7,000, but is covered by insurance.

This is the second time Mr. Dewey has been burned out since he has been in the hotel business in Michigan—once while at Harbor Point, and this time at Omena. It is not known what his plans are as to rebuilding.

Several Jacksonville citizens own summer cottages at Omena.

P. H. Duffy, of Ashley, Ill., writes: "This is to certify that I have taken two bottles of Foley's Kidney-Cure and that it has helped me more than any other medicine. I tried many advertised remedies, but none of them gave me any relief. My druggist recommended Foley's Kidney-Cure and it has cured me. Decatur Review Has Interesting
Comment on Urbana-Mutes Game Saturday.

Decatur Review: Playing for the high school championship and only once scored on this season, Urbana Thorburn high school was Saturday beaten by the Deaf and Dumb institution team at Jacksonville by a score of 17 to 5.

It was the wildest, wierdest and altogether the fiercest game, say the high school boys, that they have ever played. The mutes were not large nor heavy, but they were as fast as weasels and apparently had muscles and nerves of steel. Moreover they were individually invulnerable and came out of a fierce scrimmage that would lay out one or two of the high school boys as bright and smiling as if they were merely indulging in a game of croquet. Urbana scored in the first half and so did the mutes, but in the second half the high school team was unable to withstand the fierce rushes of the silent automatons and two more touchdowns and two goals were scored against Urbana.

GAVE THEM THE CREEPS.

It was a ghostly sort of game, said one of the Urbana men, playing against a team that never uttered a sound, that couldn't be hurt and never seemed to lose speed and wind.
He thinks the silent, relentless work of the mutes destroyed the morale of the high school boys and was responsible for the defeat. The fiercest player of the mute team was Tate,
the negro right tackle.

The game does not figure in the high school championship series. Urbana has played and won from Sidney, Danville, Clinton, Covington, Ind., Tuscola and Rockford. The latter is the only team that has succeeded in scoring on the team from the university city.

The Urbana team passed through Decatur Saturday night on their way home.

CITY COUNCIL.

A call for a meeting of the city council for the purpose of electing a mayor pro tem to serve during the absence of Mayor Davis from the city was issued Monday and a number of the aldermen responded last evening. Before the meeting could be called to order the Democratic aldermen left, and as there was no quorum without them no meeting was held.

wife, will arrive at Sinclair this

HATCH SUCCESSFUL.

Induced the Dr. Howard Company to Make Special Price.

After a great deal of effort and correspondence, Hatch, the popular druggist, has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special price introductory offer on the regular 50 cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia.

Dr. Howard's specific has been so remarkably successful in curing constipation, dyspepsia and all liver troubles, that Hatch is willing to return the price paid in every case where it does not give relief.

The old-fashioned idea of dosing with mineral waters, cathartic pills or harsh purgatives will soon be a thing of the past. The best physicians are prescribing Dr. Howard's specific because it really gives the desired results and on account of the small and pleasant dose that it needs.

Headaches, coated tongue, dizziness, nausea, stomach, specks before the eyes, constipation and all forms of liver and stomach trouble are cured by this scientific medicine.

RAILROAD NEWS NOTES

Thomas Dyer Injured by a Fall at the Car Shops—Other Notes of Interest.

It is announced that the Alton will shortly absorb the Quincy, Carrollton & East St. Louis branch between Carrollton and Litchfield, and which crosses the line of the Alton at Carrollton and Carrollton. The Alton has virtually controlled this line for several years, but in its management it has been operated independent of the Alton. Ticket agents wishing to sell tickets to any point on the branch must sell coupon tickets, one part reading over the Alton to Carrollton or Carrollton and the other to the point desired on the branch. Auditor Carter, who was sent to Carrollton by the Alton from the Chicago general offices, has been in charge of the road. The train dispatcher also serves at agent at Carrollton and looks after the transportation department. At Carrollton there is a joint agency, Mr. Tuttle looking after both roads. At Carrollton, however, there are separate depots and agents. In a short time the two depots will be combined and one agent look after both. In the past agents along the branch filed their reports to the auditor at Carrollton, but by a new order, just issued, they must file them to the auditor at Chicago. It is likely that in a short time Auditor Carter will be given a post on the road and the position abolished.

General Manager Goodnow, announces an important extension of the electric block signals on the Alton.
The road between Dwight and Mazonin, eleven miles in length, will be given these safeguards, seven additional blocks being put in. The decision to increase the number of these blocks makes it certain that the officials are counting upon heavy business during the coming year. The company already has the station block in effect between these points, but the electric block furnishes an additional precaution, expose any broken rail, open switch or other trouble and pay for themselves many times over in the avoidance of wrecks.

C. E. Jones, of Beardstown, roadmaster of the Burlington, was in the city on business Monday.

Engine No. 162 came out of the shops Monday and was again put on her regular train, No. 38. The 167, which has been attached to the train, was put in the round house last night and went to Springfield to day to report for duty.

James Carney, fireman on the C. & B.
& Q. train No. 48, laid off yesterday to attend the funeral of John Fitzsimmons in Litchfield. His place was filled by Fireman Frank Kinder.

The bridge and building force was at work Monday unloading the posts for the new platform at the Burlington freight depot. The work will begin on the depot in a few days.

B. A. Cook, assistant engineer for the
C. & A., of Bloomington, was in the city Monday.

J. T. Martin, supervisor of bridges and buildings for the C. & A., was a business visitor in the city Monday.

The C. & A. pile driver, which has been employed on the removal of the turntable, was expected to leave Tuesday for Carrollton.

The work on the C. & A. turntable, which is being removed to the north stock yards, is getting along nicely.

ANENT "EVERYMAN."

"Everyman," the old morality play, was written about the middle of the 15th century, probably by some monk in England. The morality plays were written and played at the monasteries for the education of the people. The play to be given here to night deals with the life of "Everyman" and his relations to the allegorical characters, Death, Fellowship, Kindred, Goods and Riches, Strength, Beauty, Knowledge, Good Deeds and others. It was by far the most popular play before Shakespeare's time.

MR. RUDOLPH E. MAGNUS.

and company is the same company that has met with such popularity for the past three years throughout the east, at Boston, New York, Philadelphia and at Chautauque, N. Y. Several weeks of crowded houses in Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City go to show the wonderful popularity of this company. This is the original company, No. 1. There is no No. 2.
The presentation here to night will be in no wise inferior to what it has been in the large cities. Some good seats still left.

BRONSON CLUB.

Last Thursday evening at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cain a royal reception was tendered the members of the Bronson club by their genial classmate, John D. Cain. The house was tastefully decorated in the class colors, purple and gold, and the masses of beautiful yellow and purple chrysanthemums everywhere evidenced to the class of 1905 that the evening was for their enjoyment.

After spending a few hours very pleasantly in social converse and various games, the merry guests were led to the dining room, where they were served with such dainty refreshments as would delight the palate of an epicure.

To Miss Molly Maroney is due the credit for the artistic decorations, which added so much to the joyful occasion. One feature of the evening was a guessing contest, in which Miss Anna Harmon was the winner, receiving a beautiful book as a trophy of her victory. To each member was given a souvenir, a purple and yellow chrysanthemum tied with yellow ribbon. To all present the occasion was only one of the many proofs of the generous hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Cain and family.

PIANO RECITAL

Classical Program Artistically Given by Mrs. Stead Monday Evening at Woman's College—A Talented Musician.

The piano recital given by Mrs. Stead at the Woman's college Monday evening was a distinct musical triumph and was greatly enjoyed by a large audience of musicians and music lovers.

Mrs. Mabel Riggs Stead is a pianist of remarkable ability and she has all the qualifications which make the great artist. She has temperament, fine technique and thorough musicianship. The beautiful singing tone which she gets from the instrument is delightful. Mrs. Stead's interpretation of the various numbers on her program last night showed a true understanding of the work in hand. The program was so enjoyable throughout that it would be hard to select any one number for special comment. The Beethoven sonata, which is heard so often, was full of new beauty as played by her. The Grieg number and the Chopin waltz were played with great artistic taste and the last group was an excellent test of a pianist's ability. The last number, the concert waltz by Moszkowski, was given a most brilliant rendering.

Mrs. Stead certainly has a bright future before her in the pianist world. She will begin another year's work in January with her teacher, Miss. Bloomfield Ziesler, of Chicago, without doubt one of the greatest teachers in the world to day.

Mrs. Stead was frequently compelled to respond to the enthusiastic demands for encores. The applause after the Chopin waltz was so hearty that the number was repeated. "The Children's Ball" was another number which was received with especial favor. The program:

Pastorale ..... Scarlatti-Tausig

Lyrical pieces—"Birdling," "To Spring," "Butterfly," "Poem

Erotique" ..... Grieg

A MARRIAGE IN THE DARK

(Original.)
Geoffrey Curran was sleeping soundly in his bed when a neighbor rapped at the front door and asked if some one in the house would go for a clergyman to attend a dying man. Geoffrey, being young and vigorous, was chilled, put on his clothes, yawning the while, and sallied forth into a stormy night. He had been up late for several nights and found it difficult to get himself thoroughly awake. However, he found his way to the residence of the nearest minister and rang the bell. A maid opened the door, let him into the hall, which was unlighted, and thence into a waiting room. There she scratched two or three matches, all of which failed to ignite. Then she went away. Geoffrey sat down in an easy chair and in a few minutes was sound asleep. He was awakened by a voice saying:

"For heaven's sake! Asleep? Get up. There, take hold of my hand." Geoffrey, only half awake, stood on his feet, felt a soft little hand grasp his and heard a man's voice rapidly speaking words which ended, "What God has joined together let no man put asunder."

The words restored Geoffrey to his full consciousness. It was plain that something unusual had happened, and he was curious to know what would be the result. By a street light that shone dimly in at a window he saw several figures leaving the room, heard a carriage door shut without and the rumbling of wheels.

"I don't understand what to do, I suppose," said a man's voice.
"Certainly," replied Geoffrey, and walked out of the room and the house. It had come over him suddenly that through some mistake he had been married. There was only one woman in the world he wished for his wife and that was his cousin. He was much troubled. How the law would regard the matter he did not know, but he feared it would hold him to be a married man. For the time being the thing for him to do was nothing. He was the only one cognizant of the fact that he, Geoffrey Curran, had gone through the marriage ceremony, and he resolved to keep the secret. He hunted up another minister, and took him to the house where he was expected. Then Geoffrey went home.

Ten years passed. Geoffrey, whose cousin had married another, was in middle life and was getting tired of living alone. He had fancied several women, but loved none. This he had considered fortunate, for the scene in which he had taken part in the minister's waiting room constantly came up before him like a dream, and he feared to marry unless his unknown bride might turn up.

One evening at a ball Geoffrey met Eugenia Elmore. The acquaintance ripened into friendship and friendship into love. Miss Elmore was about ten years his junior, just the age a man nearing forty would prefer. For the first time since his cousin married he wished to take a wife. Miss Elmore gave every sign of response, and there seemed nothing in the way of their union except Geoffrey's secret. He put a supposition case to a lawyer, who told him that the intention of the law not being fulfilled perhaps he was not married, but the weak point was that either the man or woman in the case must prove that he or she had been married by mistake and either could make trouble for the other. Geoffrey would not wed without making a clean breast of the affair to the lady he was to marry. One evening he sallied forth to see Miss Elmore, tell her the whole story and ask her if she loved him well enough to take the risk of a marriage that might be pronounced illegal by the courts. He skillfully led up to the subject, declared his love and without waiting for a response added:

"But I regret to say that there is an impediment to my marrying any one."

"That is doubly unfortunate," replied the lady.

"How so?"

"I have a confession to make. I have loved before."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, when a very young girl—only sixteen—I was infatuated with a youth of eighteen. My father objected my marriage on the ground that I was too young. In an evil hour I consented to a secret marriage. It was arranged that at midnight, after all were asleep, I should steal out, greet my lover at the rectory and be married. On arriving there the rectory was just coming downstairs in the dark, and my fiancé was in the reception room. I was very much frightened and would not wait for lights. Indeed, I preferred to run the risk of being seen. The marriage took place at once, and we separated immediately after. The next day I was surprised to learn that my boy lover had weakened and had not been to the rectory at all. His father got wind of his relations with me and sent him away. I have never seen him since."

Geoffrey listened to this brief recital with astonishment, and when it was ended clasped his love to his breast, exclaiming:

"My wife!"

He was so delighted that it was some time before Miss Elmore could calm him and get his story. She would not, could not, believe that so singular a coincidence had come to pass and would not consent to another marriage which both considered necessary until Geoffrey had procured affidavits of those who knew of his going out on the eventful night to secure a parson. This he did, and when the ceremony took place it was in broad daylight and in the presence of a large number of witnesses.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

An American Countess.

Lady Curzon, wife of Baron Curzon of Kedleston, viceroy of India, whose serious illness caused deep concern in British royal circles, was formerly plain Miss Mary Leiter of Chicago. Lady Curzon, as wife of King Edward's viceroy in India, was the most prominent woman at the famous durbar of Delhi—the ceremony at which England's king was crowned emperor.

LADY CURZON.

of India. This affair was the most gorgeous spectacle of the new century and its barbaric splendor will probably never be equaled.

The Curzons returned to England last spring, at which time Lord Curzon was appointed lord warden of the cinque ports, an honorary position which includes among its perquisites an official residence at Walmer castle. The castle is on the Kentish coast some miles north of Dover. Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter and Miss Nannie Leiter, mother and sister of Lady Curzon, are now with her at Walmer castle.

Vetoed the Measure.

At the Wisconsin state fair, held at Milwaukee, the visitors were recipients of yardsticks which an enterprising furniture house was distributing. Governor La Follette had one of these sticks and while enjoying the evidences of prosperity exhibited by the farmers of his state used the measuring rod as a cane.

The governor of a great state carrying a rule on one side of which was displayed an advertisement presented an opportunity which no enterprising merchant would neglect. A photographer was engaged and ordered to take a snapshot of the executive who was doing such good public advertising.

Intuitively the governor realized the intent of the energetic photographer, and quickly he bawled the yardstick to one of his companions, saying, "Keep it as one of the measures vetoed by the governor."

Watch For the Bridegroom.

"What would happen to men if women entered politics?" asked Senator Gorman recently. "They are," he continued, "keener than we are, even in their Sunday schools, and we wouldn't stand any chance with them. In one of the few Sunday school classes I ever addressed I was unplugged by a miss of six summers. I was telling the girls a story of the seven wives and seven foolish virgins, and I asked what we might learn from the beautiful story when a little blossom in blue replied: 'That's easy enough. Learn to keep your eyes peeled for a bridegroom.'"

Famous as an Orator.

Charles A. Towne, who has re-entered the political arena as a Democratic congressional candidate in New York city, formerly represented Minnesota both as a senator and representative in the United States congress.

During Mr. Towne's service at the national capitol he became noted for his eloquence and power in debate. He is a native of Michigan, but removed to Duluth, Minn., in 1900, where he soon became active in politics and was elected to the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth congresses as a Republican.

In 1896 Mr. Towne was a delegate from Minnesota to the Republican national convention, but walked out because of that body's action on the money question. In 1900 he was nominated for vice president by the Populists and Silver Republicans, but declined both nominations and worked for William J. Bryan. He was appointed senator from Minnesota by Governor Lind in 1900 to serve an unexpired term of two months. When he removed to New York Mr. Towne affiliated with Tammany Hall, and his recent nomination is equivalent to election, the district being strongly Democratic.

"I shoot a man in the back?" gasped the boy.

The recruit followed him through the bushes and over the dead logs and limbs until a halt was made beside a dead tree. At a distance of not over ten rods the Confederate pickets were seated on the ground, with pipes in their mouths and cards in their hands.

"Test your gun across the log there and take dead aim at the big feller's back," whispered the vet as he pulled "fresh fish" forward.

"No, I can't—I can't. I tell you it would be murder, and I can't do it!"

"Murder? Bosh! Durn you for a boobey and a coward! You ain't got snuff enough to fight a dy. Say, young feller, let me tell you something. When I go back to the company and report what a white livered chicken hearted baby you are, what are the boys going to say about it?"

"I think I'll shoot him," whispered the recruit after a struggle with himself. "That is, I'll shoot him if it won't be murder."

"Murder? your grandmother! Can't you understand that, your Uncle Sam is paying you $16 per month to kill Johnnies and that he don't give a cuss whether you do it with a club or a musket? Lord, but what a fair mark you've got to shoot at! It could plump a bullet into him with my eyes shut. Sit down here and kill your first man!"

The recruit slowly knelt down and stretched out at full length and thrust the barrel of his musket over a log. He breathed hard, his eyes were shut, and the musket pointed into the tree tops.

"Hang you!" growled the veteran as he gave the boy a kick. "But have you turned into a baby or an old woman? Just draw a bead for the middle of that Johnny's back and don't keep us waiting here all the afternoon!"

"Tell you I can't. I can't do it now!" whined the recruit as he sat up and faced the veteran, with all the color gone from his face and his hair quivering. "I enlisted for a soldier, but I can't and I won't shoot a man in cold blood. When it comes to a battle I'll shoot, but not here and now."

"Uncle Sam got a peach when you signed the rolls, he didn't sneered the vet as he looked down upon the other in supreme contempt. "Now we would thin out the Johnnies if we had a thousand snafeworms like you in the Fourth brigade. Going to shoot or not?"

The recruit raised his hands to his face and began to weep as he looked at the veteran's face as he regarded him for a moment, and then he knelt down to take the shot himself. The rebel picket had disappeared, and he rose to his feet with a curse of disappointment and shame.

A Living Target

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

"Now, I'll explain things to you a bit clearer," said the veteran to the recruit as they leaned on the barrels of their muskets and looked at each other.

"There's a rebel picket about opposite us and not over musket shot away. They are two men, the same as us, and it's our business to kill them and theirs to kill us. Just so long as we stay hidden here they can't see us, but it's our duty to crawl down toward them and get a shot. You see, the idea of war is to kill. One man don't count for much, but if we keep on killing, by and by we'll have a hundred. Now, what's the matter with you?"

The recruit had sunk down at the foot of the tree and was looking around him in apprehension.

"Do you mean that we're going to skulk and creep and shoot men down in cold blood?" he asked as his lip trembled and he put his musket away from him.

"What the devil ails you?" growled the veteran. "Who talks about cold blood down here at the front? We are down here to kill or be killed, ain't we? I ain't going to let no feller kill me if I can plunk him first. I had kind of sized you up as having some grit, but I guess I was wrong. I guess you'd better stayed at home and played with a doll baby."

"And so had you?" exclaimed the recruit, made angry by the sneering words.

"Oh, I see. Got your mad up, have you? Well, keep it a-bling and come along with me. We'll work down on the left flank and see if we can catch them Johnnies napping."

When they had gone about 300 feet, making their way as carefully as Indians on a hot trail, the veteran paused and whispered:

"You wait here and let me go on alone and locate 'em. Just keep calling me a liar to yourself and get as mad as you can. You haven't got any more sand than a girl when you ain't mad."

He was gone ten minutes. During that interval the recruit had to hang on the bushes to prevent himself from running away. When the veteran returned there was a smile on his face, and he reached out and patted the recruit on the back and said:

"Luck is with you, my boy. The two Johnnies are sitting down and smoking and playing cards, and we can creep up within fifty feet of them. You can't miss hitting a man in the back at that distance."

"I shoot a man in the back?" gasped the boy.

The recruit followed him through the bushes and over the dead logs and limbs until a halt was made beside a dead tree. At a distance of not over ten rods the Confederate pickets were seated on the ground, with pipes in their mouths and cards in their hands.

The recruit followed him through the bushes and over the dead logs and limbs until a halt was made beside a dead tree. At a distance of not over ten rods the Confederate pickets were seated on the ground, with pipes in their mouths and cards in their hands.

"Test your gun across the log there and take dead aim at the big feller's back," whispered the vet as he pulled "fresh fish" forward.

"No, I can't—I can't. I tell you it would be murder, and I can't do it!"

"Murder? Bosh! Durn you for a boobey and a coward! You ain't got snuff enough to fight a dy. Say, young feller, let me tell you something. When I go back to the company and report what a white livered chicken hearted baby you are, what are the boys going to say about it?"

Where They Spent Their Honeymoon

(Original.)

"I say, Louise, they're on to the place where we're going to spend our honeymoon. You don't mean it! However did they find it out?"

"What do you say to changing the place—Washington, for instance?"

"Splendid!"

"I have a scheme. There are several routes to Washington. Suppose you take one and I'll take the other."

"And travel all alone?" (Cautiously.)

"Yes, only a few hours' ride."

"Well, that is if you would be sure to meet me at the station."

"I'll arrange all that. I'll take a train that reaches Washington earlier than your train and will have a cab ready. I'll give orders for your baggage to be checked to Richmond and mine for, well, say Harpers Ferry. Before we're off I'll change yours, and I can change mine on the train. By Jove, it's a jinx dandy plan. How we'll fool them!"

"Are you sure there'll be no mistake about the baggage?"

"Of course I am, little sweetheart. Don't turn pale over a small matter like that. Keep up your pluck and we'll have the whole town agog at a bridal couple going to spend their honeymoon in different places."

"I hope nothing will go wrong."

He held her in his arms, giving her a kiss at intervals of from ten to sixty seconds, then with a clearing up shower of kisses went off to engage rooms at the capital.

The wedding was at high noon. The groom and his attendants wore the usual priestly frock coat with the usual enormous flower on the lapel. Every one wondered where the couple were going for the honeymoon, but no one knew. Then when it was all over the house was made as habitable as possible at short notice and the bride's parents retired to rest.

"What's that?" exclaimed the mother, starting up. The night lamp showed that the clock stood at 1:30.

"Listen!" said the father.

There was a feeble hammering on the front door.

"Get up, pa, quick. Oh, heavens, what's happened? I hope it isn't a telegram."

The man arose, put on a dressing gown, shuffled into a pair of slippers, went downstairs, opened the door, and the limp form of his newly married daughter fell into his arms. A carriage stood out under a street lamp, and the driver, on seeing the lady admitted, drove away. The father carried his daughter into the drawing room and laid her on a divan. The mother, who had followed her husband downstairs, entered, switching on the electric light.

"Louise," she exclaimed, with a scream. "Oh, what is it?"

No answer.

"Louise, speak to your poor mother!"

"Let her alone, can't you?" from the father.

"Oh, papa! Oh, mamma! Such a dreadful thing!"

"What thing?" shrieked the mother.

"Harry and I wanted to fool you all. We went out on separate trains to Washington. Harry was to meet me at the station. He wasn't there!"

"The villain! He's deserted you!"

"The villain! He's deserted you!"

"No, I told them at the station what train he had taken, and they said there had been a washout on that road and they couldn't tell when trains would get through. So I had to come home."

"Dear me, I'll be all over town before breakfast. What'll people say?"

"Stop your chatter," from the father.

"Come, Louise, go to bed. It'll all come right tomorrow."

He led his weeping child upstairs to her own bedroom, where he left her with mother. Then, turning in, he went to sleep with as much equanimity as if nothing had happened.

Daylight was struggling through the slats when there was another rap at the door. It was heard by the mother and the bride, who awakened the head of the house and sent him downstairs. He let in the groom.

"Is Lou here?"

"Yes."

"Thank God!"

"How did you trace her?"

Telegraphed to the station. They said a woman answering to her description had failed to meet her husband and gone out on a northbound train."

"All right. You'll find her upstairs—her own room, second floor front, to the left."

There was but one more voice audible in the halls till the servants were moving, and that was a pathetic wail of disappointment, an expression of profound relief and a suddenly shrinking. Then, to all appearances, "Sleep and oblivion weighed over all."

The mystery as to where the bridal couple spent their honeymoon was never solved. "Washington" was the place reported, but the couple were not seen there. For ten days meals were surreptitiously carried upstairs by the bride's mother, who gave out to the servants that her octogenarian grandmother had arrived in the night. Meanwhile the groom had ten days of more condensed honeymoon than he had bargained for, and there was occasionally the odor of tobacco coming from the grandmother's room. One morning about 2 o'clock a carriage drove up to the door, a man and woman entered and were

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Wheat—Lower prices noted, final quotations showing losses of 1/4 c. The market was fairly active late, notwithstanding the fact that the cash was entirely cut off by a storm. There were slight reactions from 10 a. m. prices reached. There was a wonderful falling off in outside trading this morning, the drawback being lack of wire service between Chicago and New York. The local market by routine anticipations would not be had. The bulls who loaded up when prices were below the present level were the leading sellers, not caring to hold on to big lines of long wheat with the demand in the market quite slow. There was also some short selling.

Corn—The market was tame and losses of 1/4 c. were recorded. The market averaged lower during the morning, principal factor being receipts of 550 cars with an estimate of 355 cars for tomorrow. There was considerable talk on the cash side of the house of an increased movement of the new crop, which with present excellent weather was against prices as well as the long holders. Temper was firm early, but it soon gave way to weakness. There was absence of usual statistics from abroad owing to the storm east.

Oats—Traded in sparingly and prices held with narrow range, close being at a net loss of 1/4 c.

Flour—Receipts, 20,000. Market lower.

Wheat, but, 40,000. 215.00

Good to prime, $5.00 to 5.50; poor to medium, $3.00 to 4.00; stockers, $2.00 to 3.00; cows, $1.50 to 2.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 45,000. Supplies were much larger than expected and prices broke about 10c, with a fair general demand. Mixed and butchers, $1.00 to 1.10; good to choice heavy, $1.00 to 1.10; rough heavy, $1.00 to 1.10; light, $1.00 to 1.10; bulk of sales, $1.00 to 1.10.

Sheep—Receipts, 25,000. There was active general demand at firm prices. Sheep, $2.25 to 2.50; lambs, $1.50 to 2.00.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

New York, Nov. 14.—Exchanged speculation was active, but the market was generally quiet. Gold for Paris to arrive. With character of movement of the first hour in industrial specialties and low grade railroad stock, reaction became quite general, and prices were generally lower. These influences paved the way for reaction during the middle session, and forced level of prices for standard stocks a point or more below.

The market was quiet, but there was a bear selling was shown by the action of the market later. The inability of the call loan rate in the face of the gold movement was a factor in the reaction of confidence. The $3,000,000 gold engagement for shipment to Paris Thursday, together with $5,000,000 expected to go to Cuba this week, recently threatened a movement toward the surplus. The money market showed that banks were running low in surplus. Loan rates were actually easier toward the end of the day.

Closing quotations:

Money on call steady at 2 1/2 per cent.

Closing bid, 2 1/2; offered at 2 1/2. Time loans steady; sixty days at 3 1/2; ninety days and six months at 3 1/2.

THE PAINTING

In Florence, so long ago that centuries intervene, a woman was performing her arduous duties in a humble, unpretending house on the Via San Gallo, where, later a famous and exquisite palace raised its noble proportions. She was a woman of the people, and as she worked she sang a Venetian lullaby that sounded as sad and sweet as the silver tinkling of a lute. She was alone, and when a sudden knock came to her door she started and ceased singing, not knowing that she had told her story of sorrow in her tender ballad.

But, with the confidence of good citizenship, she opened the door and saw by the swinging lamp's red light a youth with a remarkable countenance, so sweet and sincere was its expression, and of a slight, graceful figure, clad in Roman tunic, upon his white throat, around which tendrils of long, wavy hair hung with picturesque effect.

"Can I sleep under this roof to-night?" he inquired in the musical Tuscan syllables of his native tongue.

"Nay, sir. We keep not an inn for travelers and strangers," the woman said.

"I have duties to pay for my lodging, but I have lost my way and am weary. Besides, all the inns are full for the carnival."

The woman hesitated a moment before answering. Then she said: "For the sake of my little Raphael, who is now but an angel in heaven, you may sleep in our spare chamber. My husband will be home when the music ceases in the streets. You are hungry and must eat, but I will take no payment but your good word."

"My name is Raphael, too, and I thank you," said the youth, and he entered the house, where the walls were bare save for a crucifix and a child's cradle, with angels carved in rude scrolls upon it, was the most luxurious piece of furniture.

When Giovanni returned to his home his wife Lucia explained to him the presence of the stranger and told him how she had refused money for supper and a night's lodging.

"You did well, mia," he said; "for that the saints may comfort our little Raphael, who must miss us sorely. What sayest? The same name? Who knows that he was not sent by the Blessed Virgin for this very purpose? I will take a look at him and hear what he has to say."

The youth had that insignia of bearing which his host recognized as knowledge, but in what line he could not tell.

"He told them that he would up and away in the morning before it was light, and he took the box that he carried with him to his room that he might not disturb them on going, but he did not seek rest on the rough but clean pallet provided for him. All night they heard him moving a little, and a curious noise attended his movements, so that a great fear oppressed them lest he might burn down their dwelling or do some damage of a strange, mysterious nature. And before morning they had made up their minds that this youth with the sweet face was none other than the evil one in disguise. They prayed loudly to the Virgin for aid, and when it grew light and they heard the street door close they waited until certain that he had gone, then stole hand in hand to his room. And then they saw what seemed to them a part of that heaven where their affections were.

There was a great picture on the wall that had been black and bare when they saw it. The Virgin was depicted there in all her serene majesty of motherhood, with her infant Son leaning against her knees. There, too, was the little crucifix of Jesus, the gift of a bird. But the little St. John and the exact expression of the eyes and smile of their dear boy Raphael. The husband and wife dropped on their knees and thanked their gracious Lady for this divine instance of her favor, for now they never for a moment doubted that they had entertained an angel unwares. And the splendor of the picture was added on the wall, the colors that were bleached with such exquisite harmony that they resembled fabrics of silk or velvet, filled them with ecstatic admiration of this divine work of art. Even the honey yellow hair of the little dead boy was reproduced in his picture.

The next day all Florence heard about the miracle of the picture. Although they demanded no fee to show their treasure to the public, Giovanni and his wife Lucia grew rich by the money given them, a large share of which they devoted to the church in gratitude.

Miss Butler has notified the Journal that she did not give any party nor have a company of any kind at her house on that evening. The notice was brought to the office and given in as an actual happening. Such jokes are anything but funny.

MISSIONARY UNION

Annual Meeting Held at Westminster Church Monday Afternoon—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Missionary union was held Monday afternoon in Westminster church and after a delightful and instructive program the election of officers was held, followed by a social hour.

The program opened with a hymn by the members, after which a devotional service was held, led by Mrs. Musgrove. After another hymn and the roll call of churches, Miss Helen Shuff delighted her hearers with a vocal solo, sung in a very pleasing manner.

Miss Melton gave an interesting and helpful address on missionary work, which was heard with the closest attention.

Miss Blanche Perry then gave a delightful solo, followed by a recitation given in a charming manner by Miss Mabel Smith, after which the business of the meeting was taken up with the reading of the minutes of the last meeting. The reports of officers were heard and the report of the nominating committee. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. R. A. Gates.

First vice president—Mrs. J. B. Wharton.

Second vice president—Mrs. T. H. Rapp.

Secretary—Miss Nellie Cunningham.

Treasurer—Mrs. A. P. Vasconcelos.

After miscellaneous business and the collection, the union adjourned and enjoyed a social hour in the church parlors. A number of examples of Japanese handicraft were on exhibition and were examined with interest. Light refreshments were served.

BURGLARS ABROAD

DR. F. P. NORBURY'S RESIDENCE ENTERED

Intruder Knocked Down, Threatens to Shoot and Escapes—Policeman Brainer Shoots at Suspicious Character—Mrs. Cornelius Dewese Awakens and Finds Burglar in Room.

Burglars were abroad in the city Saturday and Sunday nights and operated in the west part of town with indifferent success. The most successful haul was made at the residence of Dr. F. P. Norbury Sunday morning, when the intruder escaped with $28 in cash.

Dr. Norbury, who sleeps in an upstairs room with his son, Garm, was awakened about 3:45 o'clock by some slight disturbance and supposed it was his son out of bed and moving about the room. He felt at his side and found that the boy was still there. He asked, "Who's there?" and looking toward the door, saw by means of the light outside of the door at the telephone and which shines into the room, the form of a man passing out with the doctor's clothes over his shoulder. Dr. Norbury jumped out of bed and picking up a shoe started in pursuit. As he entered the hall, the burglar was going down the stairs and the doctor threw the shoe with such good aim that it landed on the intruder's neck, felling him to the floor. Dr. Norbury started after him, but the man commanded him to halt, saying that if he came further he would shoot. Mrs. Norbury was awakened by the noise and inquired her husband not to go down. He decided that this was the wisest course to pursue and going to the telephone notified Captain Kennedy at police headquarters, and in the meantime the burglar made his escape.

At the time Dr. Norbury telephoned to headquarters Captain Kennedy was just awaiting a call from Policeman Brainer, who was ringing in from the Park street box. Brainer was at once sent to the Norbury home and arrived there at about the same time that Dr. Norbury got down stairs. He was standing inside the door with his revolver, but upon being assured by Mr. Brainer that he was an officer of the law, allowed him to enter.

An examination showed that entrance was gained through a window off the front porch. The latch of the window was out of repair and the window had been fastened down with a nail. It had been pried up and inside lay two overcoats which had been carefully placed to be taken by the burglar upon his exit, but which, in his hasty flight, he had left. A careful investigation revealed the fact that the burglar had been in at least three of the upstairs rooms. By the bed in Dr. Norbury's room was found a fancy decorated candle that had been on the mantle in the library, a gift to Mrs. Norbury by a friend. This had been lighted and was partly burned. In an unoccupied room was found a pair of scissors that were kept in a particular place, and in Mrs. Norbury's room was a piece of cotton cloth that had been carefully placed over a chair the night before, and this was on the floor, having the appearance of having been trampled under the feet of a person.

The clothing which had been taken, together with the doctor's hat was discovered Sunday morning by Miss Grace Carter between her mother's residence and the residence of Miss Lucy Barr, lying in the yard. An examination disclosed Dr. Norbury's physician's call book and other things bearing his name, which established their identity. The hat was found somewhat farther away.

The clothes had been rifled, $28 in money being taken. The watch and chain were left, as was also a check. A mileage book containing about $30 in money, which was in a coat pocket, was evidently overlooked.

Dr. Norbury was unable to tell whether the man was white or colored, but thinks that he would be able to recognize the voice if he should hear it again. Policeman Brainer, with Captain Kennedy, who soon arrived in the patrol wagon, searched the vicinity, but were unable to discover the culprit.

BREAK INTO OFFICE.

The office rooms, occupied jointly by Drs. Norbury, Bove and Doller, were entered about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, but nothing was secured. Dr. Bove, who sleeps in the second story of the building, was awakened by sounds from below, and thinking it was Dr. Norbury, who often is in the office at night, called to him. There was no reply and Dr. Bove got out of bed and started down stairs, when he heard two voices in a whispered conversation. Hearing the noise the burglars made a hasty retreat.

Investigation revealed the fact that entrance to the office had been gained through a rear door. Attempts had been made to pry open a desk, but had been unsuccessful, and nothing was taken.

SHOT THREE TIMES.

Policeman Brainer had a rather exciting experience with a suspicious character Monday morning about 3:45 o'clock on West College avenue. It was about time for him to ring in, when he noticed suspicious characters in the vicinity of Prospect street. He at once called up Captain Kennedy and told him of the circumstance, saying that he would omit his call in order that he might watch the men. Coming on down College avenue, Mr. Brainer saw a man in the rear of Mrs. Irvin Dunlap's residence. The man saw him approaching and running through the back yard jumped over the gate of the horse lot, pulled his hat over his ears and started down the street south, with the officer in pursuit. Owing to the fact that the electric lights on the street were out, Mr. Brainer could not see the man plainly and commanded him to halt. This he failed to do and the officer fired at him three times in quick succession. The man made his escape in the direction of the brook. Policeman Murgatroyd had been sent by Captain Kennedy to assist Policeman Brainer and the two met soon after the shooting. They searched the neighborhood, but found no one.

DEWESE RESIDENCE ENTERED.

The residence of Cornelius Dewese, 281 Sandusky street, was entered about 3 o'clock Sunday morning through a rear window. Mrs. Dewese was awakened by the sound of some one in the room and spoke to her husband. This frightened the intruder, who beat a hasty retreat, escaping by the same way as he entered. He took with him a pair of trousers, which happened to contain no money.

"A GIRL FROM DIXIE"

Sam S. Shubert's Production Presented at the Grand Monday Evening.

"A Girl from Dixie," one of the best of the comic opera lyrics, was presented at the Grand Monday evening before a delighted audience. Bright, tripping verse set to tuneful music, makes the opera one of the few American productions that has real artistic merit. The piece is handsomely staged and the scenic effects are excellent. The cast last evening was a very capable one and the hearty recognition given principals and choruses was as deserved as it was spontaneous and sincere.

Gertrude Millington as "Kitty Calvert," had the leading part and her interpretation showed dramatic talent of a high order. She possesses a voice of splendid quality, good volume and her enunciation is unusually clear and distinct. In addition to her vocal attainments her acting is strong.

Clifford Leigh as "Lord Dunsmore," D. L. Don as the village music teacher, Charles French as the professor, T. J. Keogh as "Squire Mink," Chas. J. Shaffer as the old slave and A. T. Earnest as "Ned Branon," are all entitled to praise for their clever work.

The ensemble work of the chorus was good, although in the drills there was an absence of that precision which is essential to the greatest effectiveness. The attack of the chorus was good and the members sang with a spirit that gave to the melodies that ringing quality that is always pleasing. Elegant costumes added charm to a production that in subject and execution is elaborately staged.

Americans are justly proud of their greatness and they ought to be equally ashamed of their littleness. Especially such an exhibition as was given at the close of the performance last evening. "Audience please remain seated till the curtain drops," was the polite request on the bottom of the program, but the rude manner in which the request was treated was a shameful interruption of a grand finale and was contrary to every propriety of the occasion, causing displeasure to both cast and audience. It is to be hoped that out of consideration for those who enjoy seeing a play through that such practices will not be continued.

To night, "Everyman."
